

CANDIDACY STATEMENT FOR IASP ELECTION 18-19
DR SANJAY K MOHANTY

I am a trained economist and demographer and has more than two decades of teaching and research experience in population and health related issues. I am working as at International Institute for Population Sciences, Mumbai. My area of research are health financing, multidimensional poverty and fertility analyses. I have guided several doctoral and master students for their maiden research work. I have authored more than 100 research papers in peer reviewed journals. I was Visiting Scientist at Harvard T.H. Chan School of Public Health during 2014-15 and C R Parekh Fellow at Asia Research Centre, London School of Economics in 2010. I was awarded the K.B. Pathak award, 2009 by the Indian Association for Study of Population (IASP). If elected, I plan to work and expand the quality and outreach of Demography India. I also intend to work for making the forthcoming IUSSP conference a success.
